Academic Excellence

"Spring Hill College is a Jesuit Catholic liberal arts college. Its mission is the formation of men and women into persons who are intellectually, spiritually, socially, and morally mature."

Orientation Staff, Dave Ptace, Keith [illegible]k, Cindy Grote, Lo[illegible] Zawistowski, Eddie Bello, Kevin Thibodeaux, Teresa Hatch, and David Carsker, enjoy dinner on the South Lawn.

Phi Mu rocks for 24 hours to support the Children's Miracle Network.

"Like the folk-formula for a bride's attire, the core of required courses at Spring Hill ought to have something old and something new. In the old days, now dim in memory, students took lock-step courses in Scholastic philosophy and in traditional theology, then called 'religion.' The rationale behind the core has in part been rendered irrelevant by post Vatican II reform and by changes in Catholic intellectual circles. But the parts that touch on the cherished values of Jesuit thought have not disappeared. They have been maintained to prepare students to carry them into the 21st century. That's the old and the new part. How about the something borrowed and something blue? They have been in there too — to provide the protective coloring that will get the old values into the new century. To say what they are would be to give the story away." -Dr. Charles Boyle

Tradition at Spring Hill College is like a family gene pool that is realized in each and every new generation of graduates. Each new offspring is unique and individual yet recognizable with certain family traits and characteristics. The Spring College living tradition generates academic excellence, personal and community development, generates a rich cultural diversity and responsible leadership in service to others, especially the poor. After a four-year growing experience, the new graduate is empowered to continue to grow intellectually, spiritually, socially and culturally — a responsible leader in service to others. Fr. Louis Lambert, S.J.

Community Leadership

"Spring Hill College fosters a student-centered community in which the values of the Jesuit Catholic tradition are emphasized while students are assisted in achieving their fullest intellectual and personal potential."

Student Life

As a few traditions like Belle of the Hill and fraternity Beer Bowl are now just memories of the past, many traditions such as Powder Puff and Oktoberfest have survived time. Still other newer traditions, including Christmas On The Hill and Cajunfest are quickly becoming much anticipated celebrations.

Basic Essentials

"Peer groups, beach trips, picnics, bands, fun, and festivities are the essentials which made Orientation such a success this year. The freshmen were introduced to a different kind of lifestyle, that is, life on the 'Hill'. As the old saying goes, 'there's a first time for everything'. To rookie freshmen, that 'first time' was their life away from home. It all began when mom and dad loaded the car and headed for Mobile. This day had crossed the mind of every freshmen, but were we really ready for what was in store? Orientation, we were able to meet new friends, attend bands, and even enjoy the warm sun on the beach, but was this what mom and dad were shelling out tuition for? Then-BAM! It hit us! It was the first day of class! Professors piled on paper after paper and was there enough time in the day to read every assigned novel?

Aside from the academic frustrations, life on the hill brought about much joy. The dorm room became a meager substitution for our own cozy home, but with a few renovations, it became our home away from home. Marriott was not mom's cooking, but it had to suffice. We gave up our comforts of home, and learned to have life on the 'Hill'. When asked what her views of Orientation and the life afterwards brought, freshman Barbara Betancourt from Puerto Rico responded,'Orientation gave me a first hand view of what Spring Hill was going to be about. I never realized how much joy life on the 'Hill' can bring.'"-Laura Bolton

Annual College Book Sale?

"'It was the first time I had ever been excused from class so that I could attend a party,' said senior Guy Comerci, 'and this party was so big, even my teachers showed up for it.' Could it have been the annual library book sale? 'Actually, it was better than the annual college book sale,' said senior Jennifer Buttrey, 'it was the Radiators at Spring Hill during Oktoberfest weekend.'

Michael Mimnaugh, SGA president, warned students that Oktoberfest was going to be a big surprise but very few expected to catch the band on the tennis courts. Junior Phillip Trainor, aka Groucho, never imagined he would be able to catch his favorite band without making a road trip. And, Dan Schmidt, junior, said the whole weekend was so great,'I can't even remember it, I just have a sixth sense that it was one of the biggest parties I have ever experienced.'

For Missy Grote and her Oktoberfest team, it was definitely a weekend to remember. 'The games were very competitive this year,but coming in first place meant we were able to throw a party for all the people who didn't win.'

One week after Oktoberfest weekend, junior Jeina Rolen, junior Merri Schmidt, and senior Kelley Holmes met Glenn Searsin Mandeville, Louisiana. 'You kids were great,' the Radiators percussionist said,'We never realized the support and enthusiasm we would receive at Spring Hill. We hope you all will invite us back.'"

Christmas On The Hill

As our parents and grandparents were busy planning traditional holiday meals and ski trips, the hall directors, residence assistances, and hall council members were busy planning a Spring Hill Christmas. Preparations for the second annual "Christmas on the Hill" began at the end of November with the hall councils collecting money from each resident to buy groceries and gifts for the family it had chosen to sponsor for Christmas. Toys were carefully chosen for the children and wrapped.

The families were invited to join the students in a candle-lit St. Joseph's Chapel to sing Christmas carols and reflect on the meaning of Christmas. Having heard a reading and a song from each dorm, the students walked over to the student center for the second annual lighting of the tree.

Although it wasn't the type of Christmas celebration most of us were used to, it was a chance for us to celebrate with our friends who we would miss over the long break.- Becca Hughes

Behind the Scenes

"Powder Puff, Oktoberfest, Christmas on the Hill, class competitions, campus Mardi Gras, and Cajunfest. What organization is responsible for all these happenings of funfilled revelry? Most students are not aware that Spring Hill's own Student Government Association coordinates almost every event that takes place on our campus. Much time and energy are put in by each SGA member to ensure the success of the events.

SGA kicked off the year with Powder Puff, which according to the student body, was a good time. SGA was also responsible for the performance given by the "Radiators" during the Oktoberfest weekend celebrations.

SGA not only provides a good time but also ensures that the good time does not end in disaster. The "Let the Badger Drive Program" enables each student an opportunity to have a safe ride home.

SGA also continues its services to our college community through ecological awareness. Recycling bins are placed in each resident hall in a effort to improve our environment.- Courtney Claro

Nervous Anticipation

Limousines, horse and carriages, skits, and nervous conversations. That was the 1992 Panhellenic rush. This year, just like every other, entailed feelings of joy, anxiety, and confusion and happiness for rushees and sorority actives alike. At the ice water teas, the rushees got their first taste of what the rush week would be like. There were nervous silences, awkward conversations, and often anxious laughter as the girls were introduced to the women of Tri-Delta and Phi Mu. The rushees also met with a representative from Tri-Sigma, who after explaining the work, fun and dedication it would take to colonize, dropped out of Rush to finish the following week . The regular SGA rush routine continued.

The second and third night parties took a more serious tone. On these nights, the rushees learned about some of the symbolism of each sorority. Rushees had begun to weigh their decision. Final choices were to be made on fourth night — preference night.

Having made their choice on Thursday evening, rushees and sororities spent Friday on pins and needles waiting to find out what sorority each girl had chosen. That night the rushees were greeted by by their new sorority sisters with Greek letters displaying their decision.

After everything was said and done, most people felt that all the planning, hard work, and nervous feelings had definitely paid off. — Marie Sheldon

A Peek Into the Past

Myth, Magic and Madness created the mood for Spring Hill College 1992 Mardi Gras Celebration. Not even the rain could discourage the revelers from celebrating with One and Dash Rip Rock. The bands were moved into the gym and attendance was slow at first but eventually the spirit of Mardi Gras caught on. It was a mythical, magical and even raining celebration. Reigning over the madness were Queen Krista Veltman and King Tiny. The weekend began with the Mardi Gras Ball on Friday at the Hilton which no one attended in costume but all dressed up for and had a "ball".

The next item on the Mardi Gras agenda was the parade which was attended by students as well as the public. Student's enacted the parade theme "A Peek into the Past" by dressing in a time period. The Phi Mu's paid a tribute to the ancient Greeks by decking out in togas, while SHORES, who won first place, payed tribute to Gilligan's Island. The Deltas brought the Stone Age to life by dressing as the Flintstones and the Sigma Chi's recognized JFK's asassination. All in all, most students felt it was the best Mardi Gras ever.

Spring Fever

The spring months were a whirlwind. For many it is difficult to recall where we were at any paricular time. Much of the time we were on ''breaks''. Most headed somewhere warm for Spring Break and many of us went home or to our roommate's home for Easter. But for the long days between Spring and Easter breaks many of us felt the temptation to cast aside books and head for the beach, while others opted to stick it out in class. Our memories of spring consist of those final agonizing hours in the library, or typing into the morning, or repacking those huge boxes of things we didn't use all year.

In these last weeks we worked hard but we played even harder. We were busy making memories and having a few more big weekends. Cajunfest and Earth Day games were the SGA sponsored activities that brought the year to a close. A few of us attended one more formal or took one more trip to New Orleans. However, most of us took a few more trips to the library.

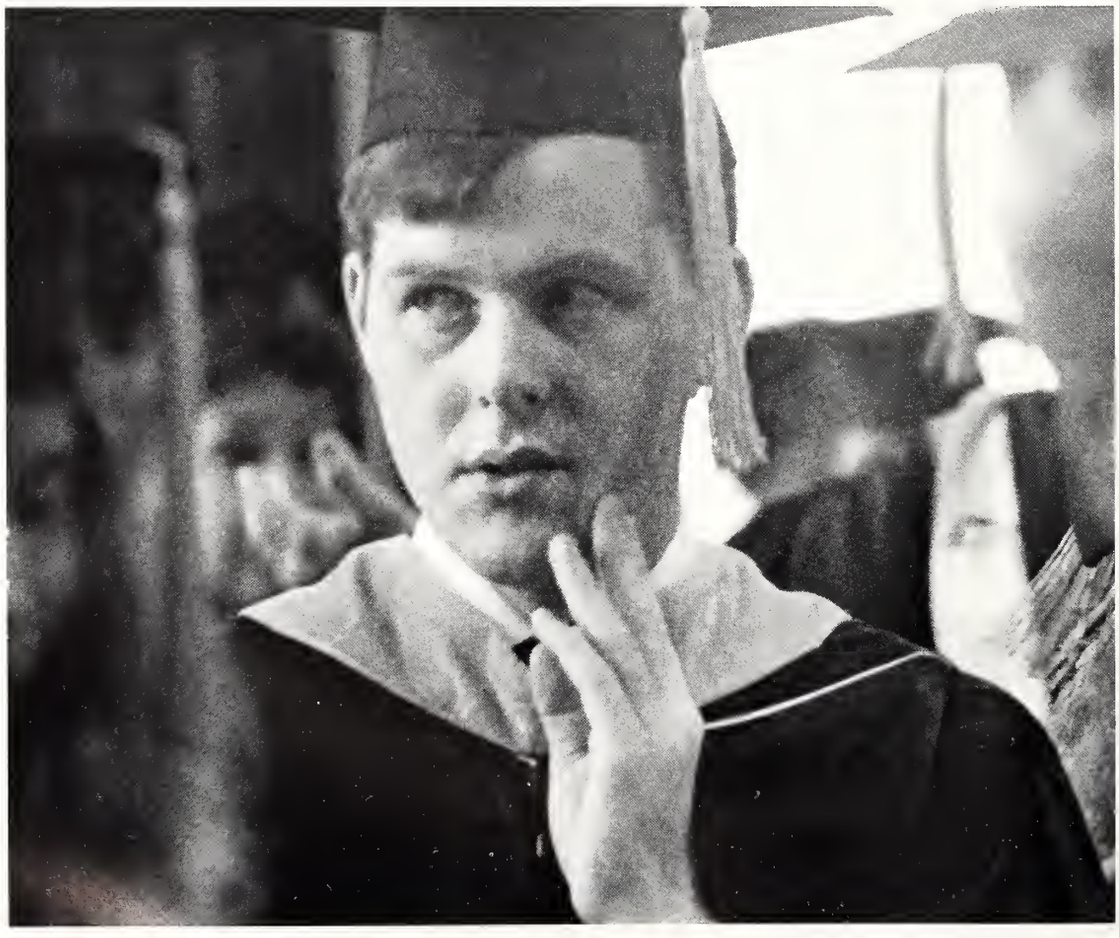
Anticipated Frenzy

May, the shortest and most anticipated month of the year, was finally upon us. Seniors, having completed exams and countless anxiety attacks, were ready to walk. Freshmen were a little depressed to be leaving their new friends behind for the summer. And everybody was relieved to be done with that last paper, that last quiz, that last exam.

The days of May were spent in a frenzy of preparations for graduation. The prom had to be planned, grades turned in, and the Baccalaureated prepared. And most importantly the Avenue of the Oaks was swept and planted with new flowers. The graduates were nervous and excited. When the ceremony began, as the graduates processed down the Avenue, the sweat and tears, the work and play all came together to make the acomplishments worthwhile.



Tim McCann appears to have second thoughts about graduating.

Senior Class ORATOR

Most Reverend Archbishop,
Reverend Father President,
Faculty,
Classmates,
Friends,
And, Most Especially, Parents,

Happy Mothers Day! We, the members of The Class of 1992, have just walk across this stage to receive our diplomas. As graduates of Spring Hill Colle we sincerely thank those who have helped us on our journey: our teache friends, families, fellow students, and stimulants of various kind. We made but these last few weeks have been hectic. Exams, papers, senior seminars — lack thereof; the prospect of leaving treasured friends: over-priced invitatio ill-fitted gowns, and these things whatever they are, how do you put them o Filling out applications for grad schools and jobs; saying good-bye to 72 of c faculty; the recession and the riots in L.A., Atlanta, and even Mobile; these have weighed heavily on our minds and emotions and gnawed away our ti with each other. And on top of all these things, I had to write a speech — a go one. "The pressure's on," they told me. "Erma Bombeck is sick so you have be the funny one." Oh no, I thought. It struck me that I had no whimsi anecdotes about children, septic tanks, or bowls of cherries. Then I realiz that it was just a few days before graduation and I still had not-despite all go intentions-written all. . .well, any. . .of my thoughts for this speach. So, I c what any college student would do. . .I panicked. I waited one more day honor of the gods of procrastination. And finally I made myself sit down a write.

Don't get me wrong. I've been thinking about what to say ever since I w elected senior class orator. I asked people for suggestions. And the input was strangely the same — "Just say my name." As I sought a more substant framework for this speech, people gave me the same instructions for nam dropping over and over again "just say my name, Marc Navarre, it does have to be in any context!" Julie and Carlos and JoAnn and Thaddeus, w isn't even graduating, all said the same thing.

Names. I decided that names would be a great topic. At Spring Hill, we ha a tradition of intriguing names — Chief, Naga, Ogre, Bucket, Goose, and sec squirrels. We are part of a graduating class that includes Tiny, Stench, G Butthead, Starbuck, Bizarro, and Mental Ward. Names give us a source identity. They indicate who we are. These have been growing years as we sea for and develop our identities.

What kinds of names did we make for ourselves at Spring Hill? We w Greeks, sailors, and dolphin disectors. Torch staffers, Knights, and SGA re We called ourselves Mardi Gras revellers, beach bums, and friends, confida talkers, and slackers. This year we could even take pride as strong, tenacio and fearless Badgers who became the NAIA district champs in basketball a baseball. As always, we have been students. You, our teachers, daily convey your knowledge and excitement for your fields of study. You taught us m than what's in books. You instilled in us a respect for others. You gave confidence in our abilities. You made us believe that we can positively af the world around us. It is with genuine and heartfelt appreciation that I th you on behalf of the Class Of 1992.

We have also been students of life. When I was told that college is not "real world", I was taken aback. I suppose this is true in some senses — relative lack of responsibility, our chances to garner the ever-popular pa extension, the luxury of Marriott meals 19 times a week. At the same ti Spring Hill has surely been a place in which our day-to-day experience, fr simple chats in the plaza to the joys and trials of dorm living, have had a v real effect on each of us. In our relationships and our shared experiences, have learned much about ourselves, each other, and even bits of the meanin life. Through these people and activities we defined ourselves.

Now the doors to the world beyond Spring Hill College open before us. will become doctors, lawyers, teachers, and engineers. We will call ourse stockbrokers, nurses, artists and workin' folk, actors and activists. And as t continues to have its way with us, we will soon enough be spouses and pare But we will always remain friends, confidents, and probably even, at leas Sundays, slackers. And we will continue to be students. Probably the n thought-provoking comment made to me in my quest for an oratory topic this "four years ago I thought I knew who I was; not I realize that I have a l find out." In all the ways we have developed over the past years at spring H perhaps one of the most important has been a realization that growth is n finished. Creating names for ourselves is a continual process. In the word that musical sage, Bob Dylan, "If you ain't busy bein' born, you're busy dyi

For the last year now, Dr. Charles Boyle, Professor Emeritus, has been searching through and attempting to organize the historical archives of Spring Hill College. He has been trying to bring some semblance and order to the documents and pictures that make up our school's history. It has not been an easy task but it has been one that he has attacked with vigor. He was already the most learned man on campus regarding the history or the institution. Today though, he has twice as much information than he did before. If anyone attended the senior class graduation, they know that from first hand experience. For Dr. Boyle was the guest speaker and in the process of wishing the graduates good luck, he managed to convey a portion of his year's work in the archives. Spring Hill survived two fires, a few wars, two major depressions, and attacks from special interests groups, only to become what it is today. -Danny Green

Miss Torch

Liz Misiaveg

What can I say about Liz that people don't already know? Well, for starters she has a thing for poetry and she likes to read Winnie the Pooh by herself. But seriously, Liz has always been one of the friendliest people at Spring Hill. She has never failed to make people laugh or at least smile, and she can always school me on the basketball court. That's not to say that she didn't school me academically either. She graduated from Spring Hill with a 4.0 GPA and still managed to find time for Amnesty International, the Philosophy Club, Yearbook, SHAPe, and S.H.O.W. In all of which, she played vital roles as either president, editor, or a caring peer counselor. I suppose I'd be a fool to say that I'm not going to miss her. Heck, we all will. Anyway, to go on about her so would still not merit what she has meant to me these past three years. The words fail me where I know a smile or a grin would succeed. Therefore, without further adieux, the 1991-92 Miss Torch is Elizabeth Misiaveg and she shall be missed. ...Thanks Liz.-Danny Green

SUPER GAYLE

Faster than speeding Rush violation. More powerful than a yearbook deadline. Able to leap tall Oktoberfest barricades in a single bound. Who can it be? Gayle Canaga, of course.

With responsibilities ranging from Greek advisor to yearbook guru to campus-wide events coordinator, Gayle has done so much for Spring Hill College in her three years here as Director of Student Activities. Certainly her greatest contribution has been in her effect on the people with whom she has worked. Agha Hasan Abedi once said that "The conventional definition of management is getting work done through people, but real management is developing people through work." In all my experiences with Gayle, I have always seen a person who is genuinely interested in other human beings-and in Abedi's "real management."

Her positive attitude and dedication is transferred to us students whom she motivates. She lends support while challenging us to be leaders ourselves. She gives assistance above and beyond the call of duty, not to mention a large dose of sanity, to a frazzled yearbook staff. Simply put, Gayle is a hard worker and a friend.

We at Spring Hill have all benefitted from Gayle's gifts. A sense of humor. An enormous amount of energy. A willingness to lend a listening ear and a helping hand. As Gayle says "farewell" to Spring Hill, we give her a heartfelt wish for happiness in her future endeavors.-Liz Misiaveg

SGA/Senior Advisory Board

SGA distinguished itself during the 1991-1992 academic year by trying to serve the students and community of Spring Hill like it never had before. SGA's first major activity of the year was the annual Powder Puff formal. This was the first formal in a long time that went off without a hitch. The crowning achievement of the SGA was the spectacular Oktoberfest celebration. Three days of pure partying that kicked off with The Radiators performance on Thursday night. The parties were only part of the activities going on in the SGA. Campus Events such as Alcohol Awareness Week, Class Competition Week, and Faculty Appreciation Day were all sponsored or cosponsored by the Student Government. The SGA at Spring Hill tried to make all students a part of campus activities.

Torch/SpringHillian Staffs

Over the course of this year, the SpringHillian newspaper has brought to light some important issues, both on and off campus. Topics such as drug abuse, the presidential campaign and the current budget crisis were brought to light and explored in the paper. We also stirred some controversy, as all college newspapers do. The students on staff learned the basics of newswriting, editing, layout and production. We also learned a lot about baseball. Overall, this has been an extremely successful year for the paper, Craig and I are proud of it. We feel the changes have vastly improved the paper and we hope it will continue to improve.-Maureen Smith, Co-editor

WTOH

This year at WTOH 105.9 FM, we focused our attention on attracting a bigger student listening population, and a bigger awareness of WTOH on campus. We changed our format from all-alternative to free-form. We also made set shows from 6-9 every night so our students could listen to their favorite types of music at least once a week when their favorite show was on. We also began work on purchasing a remote broadcaster in order to be more involved on campus. In order to do this we had our biggest fundraiser ever in two parts: we had a marathon broadcast that spanned 34 hours, and a month later we had five bands in two nights and raised over $1,250,00 total towards the purchase. We also began dialogue with student government in acquiring their help in our purchase, and we are still working on it. Overall it was a very successful year, we would also like to thank all our supporters, without them we wouldn't be here.-Dr. Varnell Lee, Tim Scalzitti, Wayne Lee

Yenni Players

The Yenni Players is an organization for students interested in the dramatic arts. It's principle function is to produce a play each semester. This year the Yenni Players welcomed a new director, Fr. Stephen Campbell, S.J. In Fall '91, the players put together a production of Carlo Gozzi's, The Raven . This event allowed the players to bring their prodigious improvisational abilities to bear on 17th century drama. In Spring '92, the Yenni Players graced the stage with Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead by Tom Stoppard. Although Stoppard's work is difficult to perform, the player's efforts were greeted with enthusiastic applause.

This was Lucy Montgomery's last performance as a Yenni Player. She has been an active member of SHC's theater group for four years. Those who remain bid her fond farewell and rave reviews.-J. Marston, R. Laden

S.H.A.P.e

The Spring Hill Awakening Program, known as S.H.A.P.e, is a community that has grown and developed over the years. It consists of Spring Hill students who foster one anothers faith by collaborating on and staffing a retreat that is open to all students. This years Retreat was held March 6-8 at Camp Beckwith. The theme was "The SHAPe you want to be in". Each retreat is unique because of diversity of students who participate, the new friends that are made, and the bonds that form between and staffers and retreaters. By the end of this retreat, the retreaters and staffers become,"in shape" with each other and God.-Kelly Hogan

Campus Ministry/Serving Our Society

In addition to providing spiritual guidance and counsel, the Office of Campus Ministry was once again the center of much student involvement. Throughout the year, over 70 students were engaged in the campus liturgies in the capacities of lectors, eucharistic ministers, servers, ushers, and musicians. Making Ignatian Retreats on selected weekends throughout the year were 40 others. Beginning in November, the OXFAM Fast for a World Harvest raised $1,200 for workdwide relief efforts against starvation. At Christmas, all residence halls sponsored needy families in the Christmas on the Hill program. In the Spring, 8 students from Illinois State Univrersity were hosted during their Spring Break as they helped refurbish the Mobile Terrace Children's Playschool. During Lent, a staff and faculty luncheon series was sponsored. And at Easter, 10 students celebrated the sacraments of baptism, confirmation, and first communion. Campus Ministry also supports the efforts of the Troubadours and the SHAPe retreat core group.

Hardwork and Desire

If any words can be used to sum up the 1991-92 nderella season for the Badger basketball team it the words, hardwork and desire. From the early eptember runs up THE HILL to the final game in ansas City, Missouri, all twelve members gave 00%. Although the team was picked to finish xth in the Gulf Coast Conference, they used their reat depth and superior balance to surprise everyne in the league. Their impressive record of 24 ins and 11 losses was compiled against very ough competition that included 12 teams ranked the NAIA Top Twenty Five and the University f New Orleans.

The Badgers entered the district play-offs with a ourth seed and proceeded to win consecutive ames against Belhaven, regular season champ Villiam Carey, and Xavier of New Orleans to apture the District 30 Championship. This chievement qualified the team for its first ever irth in the NAIA National Tournament. While at he tournament the Badger basketball team not nly held the attention of the campus, but the ntire city of Mobile as well, since the games were roadcast live on WKRG TV. At the tournament e Badgers were once again the underdogs but were able to open with a dominating win over the 10th ranked Briar Cliff College. The Badgers dream season came to and end with a heart breaking loss to the eventual runner up, Central Arkansas. Although it was a total team effort some of the Badgers were singled out for their performances. Senior Mark Flint was recognized as a NAIA Academic All-American for the second year in a row. P.J. Thelen and Ronald Gomez were chosen as first team all-conference players for their consistent excellence. In only his third full year as head coach of Spring Hill College, Carl Nash became the winningest coach in the school's history, and the 1991-92 District 30 Coach of the year.

With only three seniors graduating; Mark Flint, Jerome LeBlanc, and Kirk DePriest, the future looks even brighter for the Badgers. The 1991-92 Badgers have been called the best team in the school's history and the players that will return hope to make next year's season even better.

A Record Season

Coming off a record season which culinated in a first-ever playoff aparence, the Lady Badgers had high pectations for their '91-'92 season. ach Angelo Archible added new talt to a strong foundation to compromise a promising new team. However, forseen misfortune- not foreign to the dy Badger program- struck. In a matof weeks, the team lost both its capns: point gaurd Barb Brady transed, and, just three games into the son, All-Conference/ All-District forrd Tammie Edwards was injured in a car accident. As Tammie struggled to recover from serious injuries, the team struggled to fill the void in leadership and experience.

Throughout the season, the Spring Hill women grew together as a team and this young team gained experience. Newcomers were called upon to contribute early on. And veterans expanded their games to lead the Lady Badgers throughout the season. Junior guard Cathy Coxe quickly stepped up, making the All-Tournament team in an NCAA Division 1 Holiday Tournament. Center Marsha Richardson began to fill Tammie's shoes, earning All-Conference/ All District honors in only her sophomore season.

Despite these accomplishments, the Lady Badgers were not able to pull off a winning season, finishing 8-18. The team dropped many close decisions, but the season was a learning experience for the players and coaches. Looking forward to the next season, Coach Archible predicts a successfull team made up of new leaders, seasoned players and strong recruits.-Stacie Popp

Setting New Records

With an endless list of honors and a ecord of 40-15, this year's baseball sea- on was the best Spring Hill has ever een. The Badgers set an incredible 18 chool records and 4 district records. oach Sims was named Coach of the ear for his second time since he has een at Spring Hill. He took this team to District 30 title and a birth in the AIA playoffs.

Coach Sims could not have done this, owever, without the outstanding per- rmances of his players. This team had credible leadership. Seniors Phil ahn, Justin Foltz, Joe Stutz, Kevin rimes, Jay Deas and Paul Brinson will greatly missed next season. Next ar's team has some big shoes to fill, t with hard work and dedication they o, will accomplish much.-Christine azza

A Record Setting Year

The 1991-92 year turned out to be a very productive one for the Lady Badger Tennis Team. The team compiled an impressive 14-5 overall record, improving from last year's 10-8 season. With solid performances from the 3 returning players, and added strength and stability from the 4 freshmen, the team was able to set 2 new school records: Best overall record for women's teams, and best individual singles record, which came from freshmen Meghan Lane with an outstanding 16-2 performance. Spring Hill also hosted their first Team Challenge Tournament, which the Lady Badger's won, defeating Millsaps College in the finals. Other strong performances came from Carol Nanna with a 14-3 record at #5, and Jennifer Wammack with a 15-4 record at #3. With the maturity of the players and the outstanding effort they give, next year could prove to be another record setting season!

The Men's Tennis Team had a strong season of excellent tennis and effort. The Badgers compiled a worthy record of 7-12 in the spring semester, while playing NAIA powerhouses like Auburn-Montgomery and Belhaven College. Nine of the Badgers' 12 losses came from teams ranked in the top 15 nationally. Leading the team was junior. Third year team member, Scott Imorde, finished with a 12-7 record at the number 2 position, while freshman Hoppy Allred finished with a 9-8 winning record for the Badgers. Players Tom Desmond, Carey Coleman, Will Nalty and Bowie Hamilton added strength to the team which allowed for a fun and exciting year of tennis. A One-Woman Show

The 1991-92 cross-country season for the Lady Badgers turned out to be a one-woman show, and a strong one at that. Due to injury, sophomore runner Brigida Pirra, who qualified for Nationals last year, was not able to compete for the Badgers this year. This left junior Zoe Ollinger, 3-time National qualifier, to be the single runner representing Spring Hill, and what a great job she did! Zoe placed 4th overall in the South Alabama Run, 7th overall in the West Florida Invitational with a time of 21:15, and had a big 2nd place finish in Districts, beating every runner from rival Mobile College. Zoe advanced to Nationals again in Wisconsin, but could not compete due to illness.

Next year should be an exciting one for Spring Hill, as the women will have scholarship money for the program and a complete team of 7-8 runners. Look for news of the Lady Badger's success next year!

For the Love of Rugby

This year the Spring Hill Rugby team enjoyed its most successful season in two years. After opening the year with a tough loss against Battleship Rugby Club, the tenacious Ruggers continued to show marked improvement under the leadership of Andrew Forsdick.

The ruggers' hard work payed off with a second place finish in the prestigious Battleship Rugby Tournament. Along the way, these hardened men toppled Space Coast Rugby Club by a score of 18-3.

This season proved the growing popularity of Rugby as many new faces filled positions for the Badgers. The Club enjoyed huge crowds at all the home games during the year.

Unfortunately, the Ruggars will lose two seniors, Mike Henderson and Matt Thomas. Matt Thomas had a great second semester after coming back from a broken jaw suffered in September. However, the Ruggers will field an experienced team next year. An experienced core of Ruggers will be lead by Chris [illegible]en, Jay Christoff, Andrew Forsdick, Frank Lam[illegible] Dave Olinde, and Chris "Knock-on" Knoch. Intramurals 1991-92

Always searching for other reasons not to hit the books in the afternoons, Spring Hill students made their way to the fields and gym to participate in the Intramural sport of the day. Whatever the activity, students enjoyed healthy competition and a great time as they won or lost their way through their game of choice. While some teams strived for the championship other teams joined in to make play humorous and entertaining for the spectators.

With an 85% student participation, Intramurals in 1991-92 succeeded in offering students such sports as flag football, soccer, billiards, bowling, broom hockey, tennis, volleyball, basketball, and softball. Intramurals offered several new activities this year, incorporating other organizations on campus such as SGA, Marriott Food Services, the Development Office, and the Greek Organizations to offer softball and volleyball tournaments, a croquet party, and a New Games Day.

The 1991-92 Intramural year proved to be successful not only on its own, but as a successful aspect of other functions offered on the campus. The sudents of Spring Hill College have enjoyed a functional Intramural program and much has been done to make the program more effective. Many thanks to students such as Dave Ptacek and Carlos Veciana and a very special thanks to Fagan Madden for all their help in making it a great year for Intramurals! AN EYE ON THE HILL

Spring Hill College Photographer

Ward Faulk

Taking a picture of Fr. Rewak from the genuine perspective of a Senior receiving his diploma. What a perfect finale to a college career full of photos for the man with the camera. . .the fellow in fatiques. . .our own outspoken in-house advocate of "HEMP for Victory". . .the eye for the Torch and The Springhillian. . .Ward Faulk.

The last, and in recent years the only, "Cinema and Photography" major, Ward received a Bachelor of Arts in Communications. How did this dedication to photography evolve? At a tender age, Ward began capturing the world with his camera. From these elementary school beginnings, Ward moved on to high school where the yearbook staff garnered his photographic talents. Then the sparse but dedicated Torch staff added Ward to its ranks. As photography editor for the yearbook, Mental Ward Faulk became an ever-present figure at Spring Hill events. The Springhillian, therefore, found it extremely helpful to utilize Ward's skills, often asking him for pictures to use in its editions.

Just how much demand does all of this put on Ward's time? His hours spent in the darkroom are one astounding statistic. Two to four hours per day is normal. But when it comes to crunch time on the yearbook, Ward lives in the darkroom ten to twelve hours daily. No wonder he has his own refrigerator and a change of "chemical shirts" on hand for long stints of developing.

Ward estimates that he takes 1600 black-and-white photos each school year for the yearbook alone. Out of the huge number of pictures he has taken, Ward lists several of them as his best:"Fueling the T.H.Kelly," "Captain Wayne," "Mr. Weaver," and "Hazel Creek." The nature and outdoors are his favorite subjects, specifically says Ward,"the effect that time has on things — the weathering." I ha- found in Ward's work a definite spirit. Pictures of nature like "Hazel Creek" seem to be from the eye of one intimately interested and inseparably a part of the world captured on film. Likewise Ward's photographs of people do not have the false air of a studio pose; rather they are genuine reflections of the people who are their subjects.

Ward's talents have been recognized in various ways. Most recently, two of his pieces were selected from works submitted throughout this entire region to appear in "Art with a Southern Drawl." But what does Ward consider his greatest achievement? The three yearbooks he has helped to produce for they are truly a lifetime accomplishment. People will have these editions of the Torch for the rest of their lives.

And perhaps you should keep these showcases of Ward's work in a very safe place. Who knows, someday the name Everette Ward Faulk may be in the ranks of Ansel Adams. . .or known nationally as a famous HEMP advocate. . .or listed as photography editor of National Geographic. . . — Liz Misiaveg

Closing

Another year has suddenly come to an end. It was a year of old traditions and new beginnings.

Our experiences this year at Spring Hill College have undoubtedly prepared us for what lies ahead in the

Individualized Education

"Spring Hill College acknowledges the right of all students to exercise freedom of thought, discussion, and action, which is essential in the development of a mature person."

Orville Wright, Christian Patte son, and Kelly Hogan take out from studying.

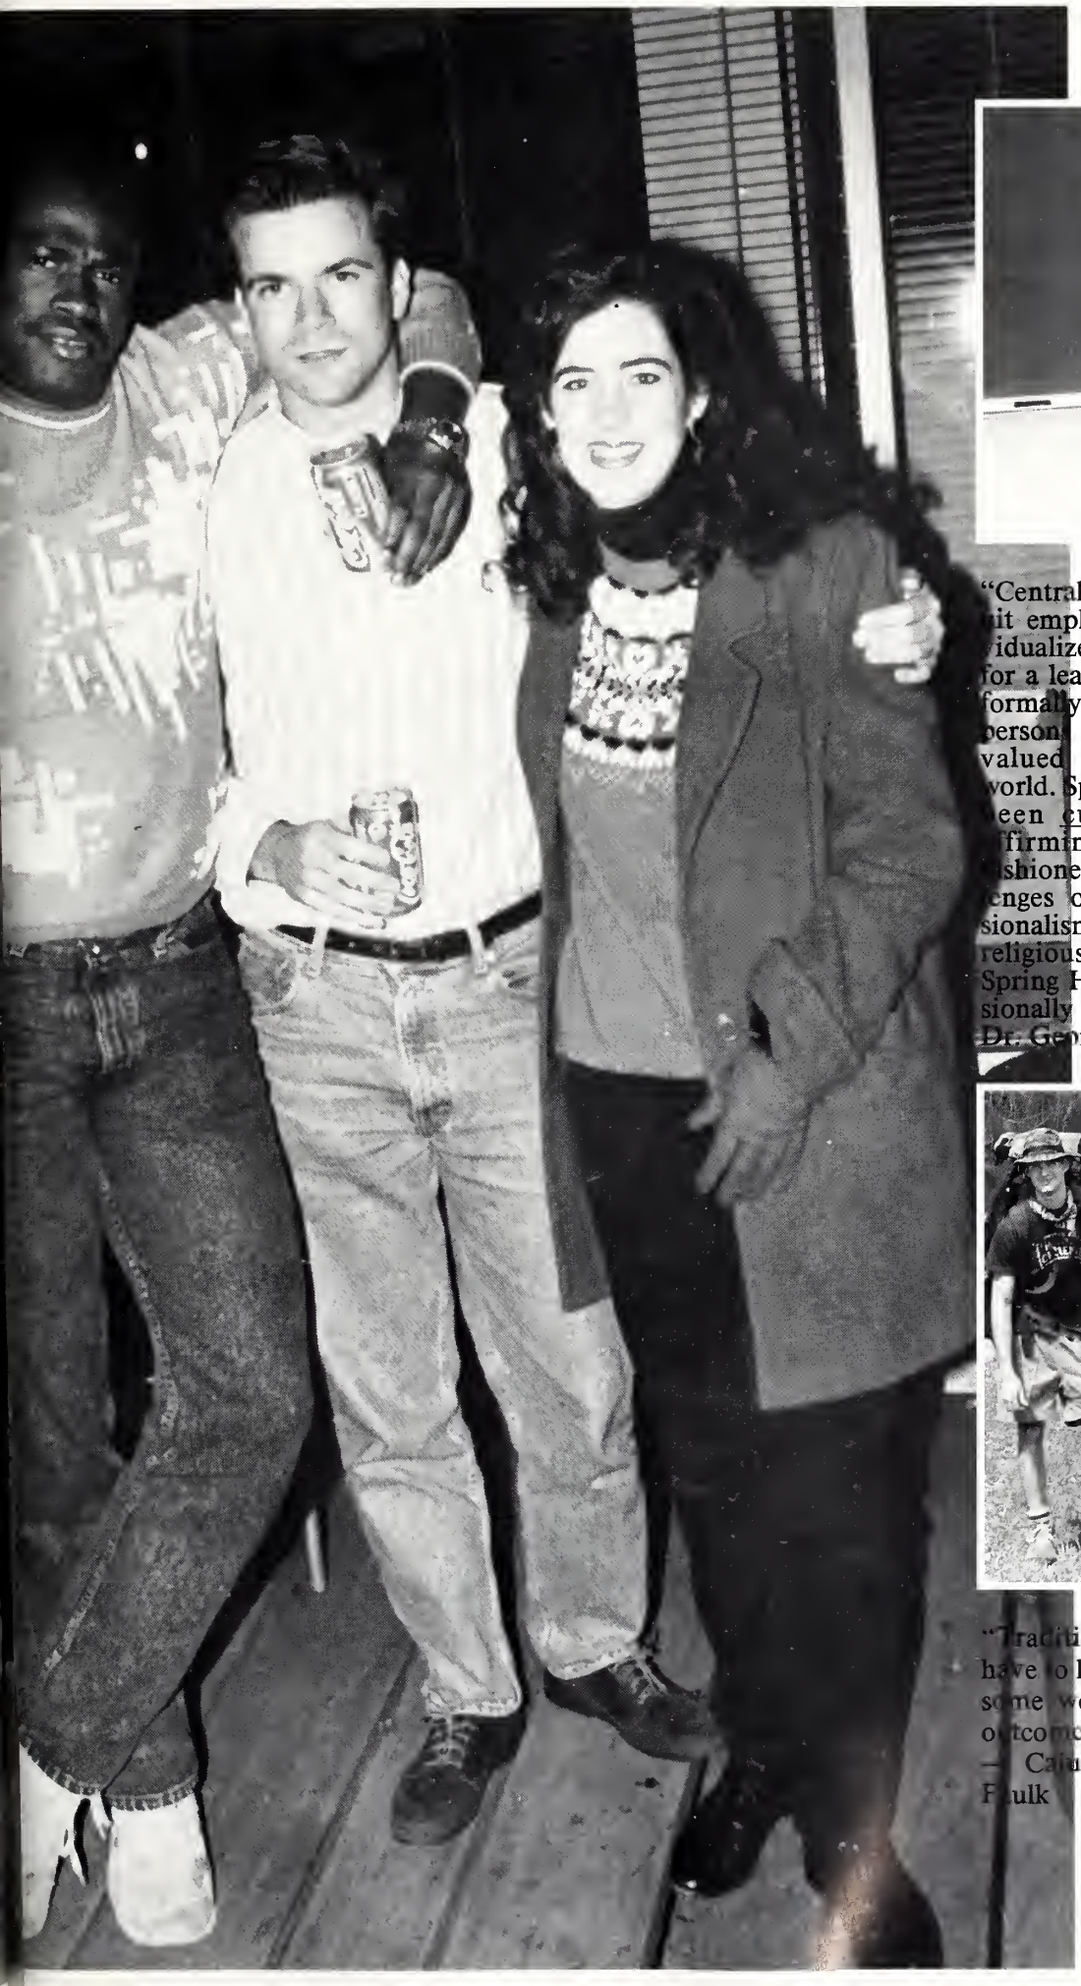
Father Rewak congratulat
JoAnn Shwartz as she receiv
her diploma.



"Central to the 'old' tradition is the Jesuit emphasis on cura personalis, individualized concern by a teaching person for a learning person. Albeit somewhat formally in an academic setting, such persons share part of their very lives in valued experience of the redeemed world. Spring Hill College education has been cura personalis and world-affirming. Beyond the core of old-fashioned teaching are the new challenges of advanced academic professionalism and cultural diversity, racial, religious, ethnic and gender-specific. Spring Hill graduates are called professionally to be all things to all people".-Dr. George Gilmore

"Traditions do not just happen. You have to keep them going, it does require some work. Most people just see the outcome... Mardi Gras — Oktoberfest — Calunfest - Powder Puff..."-Ward Faulk

"Cultivate your garden... do pend upon teachers to e
you...follow your own bent, pursue your curiosity bravely, express yourself make your own harmony...In education, like happiness, is indivi and must come to us from life and from ourselves. There is no way; each pilgrim must make his own path.-Will Durant

"If there is anything in the wor son should fight for, it is fre pursue his ideal, because in th great opportunity for self-exp for the unfoldment of the great posssible to him.-Orison S. Ma

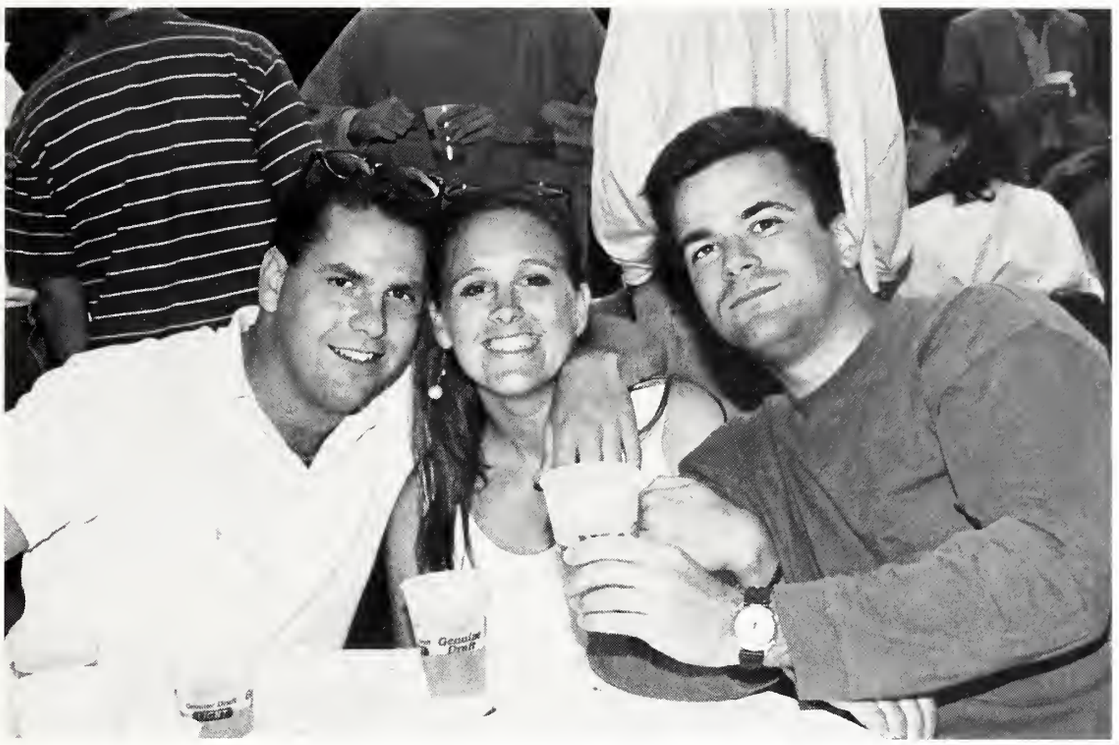
Spiritual Development



"Mutual respect must govern the actions of all so that everyone may appreciate the benefits of living and learning at Spring Hill."

The 1992 Torch was printed by Taylor Publishing in Dallas, Texas. Sonia Miles served as our In-plant Account Manager, while Damon Henderson was our Field Representative. Each full-time student during the 1991-92 Academic year received a Torch subscription after paying a $25 fee.

Cover graphics were designed by Jaime Gray. All photographs were taken, developed, and printed by staff photographers. Portraits were taken by M & A Studios out of Mobile, Alabama.
All copy in the 1992 Torch was prepared using Typevision, a Taylor Publishing Company software system. The index was compiled using Taylor's Indexvision program.
